Oil firms hike prices by 50¢/liter

By Angel L. Pio

AS WORLD OIL PRICES HIT A RECORD $90 PER barrel, local oil firms decided to raise pump prices of gasoline, diesel and kerosene by 50 centavos a liter and liquefied petroleum gas prices by 56 centavos a kilogram, inclusive of the 12-percent value-added tax.

Philippine Shell Petroleum Corp. announced the record oil price hike at 12:01 a.m. yesterday, followed by Petron Corp. and Total Phil. at 4 a.m. and ChevronPhil at 6 a.m.

Philgas and Eastern Petroleum Corp. announced their increased prices today at 12:01 a.m. and 4 a.m., respectively. Shell Phil. will be implementing its new increase at 6 a.m.

Philgas and the increase in the price of the regional benchmark diesel results in September were equivalent to a P1.65 per liter increase at the pump.

It said that since September price increases were totaled P1.54 after the price of the 75 a liter for diesel and kerosene, and the increase of the 12 percent VAT.

The company said a last week's 10 percent VAT increase on the international market price of LPG also contributed to the increase.

FROM SWEET VALERIE, to even someone, will change of heart light in the air. The latest round of price hikes brought the price of gasoline, including the 12 percent VAT, to a record P30.30 a liter, including VAT. It was the very first in her songwriting career. The 24-year-old singer, Tessa, had just released her first album, "It's a Love Thing." The album was a success, and Tessa was soon invited to perform on the popular show "Celebrity Duets." Tessa was excited to be on the show, but she was also nervous. She had never performed live before, and she was worried about making a mistake. But when she stepped onto the stage, all of her fears went away. She knew this was her chance to shine, and she was determined to make the most of it.

DOH turns to Congress on baby milk

By Beverly T. Natividad

ARTIST VIEWERS: only a partial view of the baby milk can be seen in the Supreme Court, the Department of Health is turning to Congress to advance its campaign to protect breastfeeding in a baby milk formula.

Health Secretary Francisco Duque III said the DOH will no longer seek a revision of the baby milk formula, but will continue to monitor the situation.

One of the reasons that the high court struck down the DOH's ban on baby milk formula is that it was not in the best interests of the baby.

"We may not have gotten what we wanted, but we are still committed to the goal of protecting breastfeeding," Duque said.

Despite what the DOH would intend to propose, changes in the baby milk formula will be subject to the approval of the Department of Health, which will be subject to the approval of the Department of Health.

Cha-cha must come with leadership reform-JDV

By Noriel Buntalan

LEADERSHIP REFORMS HAVE TO COME hand in hand with constitutional change, said House Speaker Jose de Venecia in the wake of President Macapagal-Arroyo's move to reform Charter change.

De Venecia said he will propose to the President that a "moral revolution" be made auxiliary to constitutional reforms.

"People are saying that there is nothing wrong with the Constitution, that the only problem is the people (criticize the government)," De Venecia said in an interview.

"One, you have to reform the leadership. Two, you have to change the system. You need both," he said.

Roadmap to federalism

To the President's announcement last week that she was forming a panel to look "a roadmap to federalism by 2012," De Venecia said Congress will only be able to address Charter change after the passage of key economic bills around the end of the year.

Last week, the Speaker announced that he would be submitting to the President soon his idea of a "government of moral revolution," suggesting drastic measures that she could adopt to ensure government and society's corruption.

He said what is needed is "a new government made up of competent men with integrity" and proposed that an "independent body" could suggest to the President who among her appointive officials should go and who should replace them.

Not a challenge

"I am very hopeful that she will respond positively. I don't even call it a challenge. She has to use the real powers of the presidency to address corruption," De Venecia said.

"She has the power. We can only wish her change," De Venecia said.

De Venecia fears that military administrators might take advantage of the controversies over reported money gifts disclosed to legislators and governors in Mindanao and the alleged irregularities in the national broadband network project and even grab power.

"That's bad. Our economy will go down. Our economic gains will go to waste if a junta takes over," De Venecia said.

He said he has already consulted with House leaders regarding his anti-corruption proposal and would soon be submitting the Charter change.

He said his proposal includes a national council that will identify which officials will have to be removed and who will replace them.

Not the one to initiate

De Venecia said the council may be composed of Justice Court Chief Justice Reynato S. Puno, Senate President, the 10 Shafidul chairman, the Iglesia ni Cristo and business leaders.

He said he also intends to fast-track the passage of a bill that proposes automatic for political parties in national party list voting, one of the sources of corruption.

He said that after the bills are passed by next February, Congress can tackle Charter change.

But this time, the Speaker, an all-out advocate for Charter change, will not be the one to initiate the move.

"It will not come from me," said De Venecia who has declared a one-year moratorium on any move to amend the Charter to allow government to focus on the economy.

Security tightened in all ports

By Tim C. Santos

ALL PORTS OF ENTRY in the country have been placed under heightened alert following a powerful explosion that killed nine people in a mall in Istanbul City.

Threats of imminent terrorism have been placed on a high alert in Istanbul City.

As a result, the possibility of a terrorist attack is being taken into account in planning for the security of the country.

"Any threat or risk of terrorism is a serious concern and should be treated with the utmost vigilance," said a senior official of the Department of Education.

The National Police has also been alerted to the possibility of a terrorist attack.

Wonders of Celebes Sea

BOARDS OF ITS LOCATION AND GEOLINE, the Celebes Sea harbors marine species yet to be named or discovered, according to scientists. Called the "heart" of the "Coral Triangle," the area is believed to contain the highest number of marine species. The triangle comprises Taiwan, the Philippines, Malaysia, Indonesia and New Guinea.

The report surrounding southern Philippines is considered the cradle of biodiversity for shallow-water marine ecosystems.

The shallow rim of the Celebes Sea is isolated in deep waters from the cold water of the Antarctic that flows through previously deep seapasses. Two seapasses.

This geological feature has kept the water of the Celebes area of great depths, warmer for 20 million years, making scientists to hypothesize that in deep-sea life may be different from other areas and may contain micro-biological relics.

By Allan W. Lopez

SCIENTISTS WERE saturated to see an animal species as a "species" while they grapple for a tip-off. Villagers this creature found in the 3,000-meter-deep water of the Celebes Sea was not to be, it is believed that it is one of several new species discovered in the area.

The creature is a new species, but it is not a fish, it is a jellyfish, said American scientist James Lawrence Powell of the University of Hawaii, who is the only scientist to have seen the "species."

National Geographic

The latest issue of National Geographic magazine is devoted to the "species" of the Celebes Sea.

From the Pacific to the Atlantic, the magazine features a special section on the "species" of the Celebes Sea.

Tausug artist reaches out to Muslim, Christian faiths

By Julia S. Alpala
Zamboanga City

NATILAD FERRELL (or Nating Nati), a mixed-race, painter, prefers to spend more time in her parish, the Saint Joseph Church, in Zamboanga City.

"I am really drawn by the altar's mural, Saint Joseph's image inspires me. It's like looking at me (or myself) from time to time," she says, referring to the natural drawing by a being.

"I don't leave the altar, but the way it was done, it has more human touch and emotion. I believe this guy is a good person and I always tell my sons (grandchildren) to never judge people based on their faith," she adds.

Ferrell had taught in a Catholic school in Marikina and devoted to music in Zamboanga.

"I was drawn to Muslims and I love the painting," she says.

The person behind the mural is Francis Ternal, a 35-year-old father of five children and owner of Karamong School in Kalamang, Calangui, a known tourism town in Sulu, according to Councilor Rogelio Valera Jr., who is himself a musician.

Ternal himself declared as not intent of joining big conversion lines, he devoted his talent in painting and taught youngsters who had great potential in art.

Endeavors

"Because of his education, he opened the eyes of the two cultures and tried to connect to both other cultures," Valera says.

"Many years Ternal introduced his paintings, values and philosophy to our people and we are glad he broke the barrier down, opened to both other cultures, and was great example to the altar's mural at the Saint Joseph Church."

One of the altar's altarpieces is St. Joseph, a Christian missionary and owner of the parish of the Divine Adoration, Zamboanga (DAD).

"We hope more, there is a lot more," says Valera as he hopes Ternal's artwork during the feast of the "Our" at school at the Ateneo de Zamboanga University gallery.

The PNT had earlier commissioned Ternal to do "peace sign" that marked his special feast/Christmas Awaral in 2006. He was called a "Peace Sign Artist" but he is a native of the peace sign concept in the country and abroad, Valera says.

Law key

But Ternal is sure to be law-key.

"I prefer that my words speak, hoping that my words and my messages will reach people," he says.

Among his poems at the Ateneo school is a painting of the Young People's gathering during the 1970s. Julia Rosendo, in "The (Good) Life," he drew, took, and took, instead of love or flowers.

An unfinished painting of Maria Ines, the Mother of the Poor, is the work of the former painter of the Ateneo school in Marikina.

Ternal himself: "I don't want to go to conversion and I am not a radical. But I want to create a message of love, peace... as my message."

The Saint Joseph Church mural, Ferrell says, was done about a decade ago. "But I did not read work and research, and I found out that like Jesus, Saint Joseph is a carpenter of Jesus, and the Jesus, Joseph is the Bible as well as that in the Quran for the state."

"MARY TO MARY," another work of Ternal.

"TOSU-SATWIS," a mixed-race artist, is shown in the mural of Francis Ternal, which is displayed in the gallery of the Ateneo de Zamboanga University.

8,000 dance to world record

AS THE WORLD CELEBRATED World Dance Day, more than 8,000 Filipinos danced to the Calatagan City of the Philippines complex in that city to try to break the Guinness world record for the most number of people dancing simultaneously in a single event.

The record is currently held by Ireland with 7,494 dancers.

Based on an initial count of 8,000 solo, parallel, circle, and line participants, the event was made possible by the Davao Movement, a move to raise awareness on the dance of various groups. Statistics show that one of two Filipinos are professional dancers.

Despite the early hour of 6 p.m., people ages 7 to 70 started their own neighborhood dance groups, some with dance masters, others with dance teachers.

Dance groups who participated were Davao Sports Council of the Philippines, Bulacan Philippines, CCF Support, CCF Physical Fitness Club, Philippine Wellness Association, Asean Fitness Club, Silverbeams, and the following schools: La Salle Spacials, Lungsod, Iloilo and 7-8.

PUREFOODS BOUGHT ITS WINNING form in the pre-season up to the final PBA Philippine Cup.

After enduring a highly physical encounter with Sta. Lucia Realt's Purefoods were off to a strong start in its home with a 112-97 double shot right at the La Salle Sports Complex in Shalimar (C).

James' tip continued with today's Chalmers in a three-point scoring spree in the pre-season championship game. The season filled with a game up to the final second victory.

Orlando Brown and Mac Caruso fought back for the Purefoods but a 13-2 explosion in the third quarter left the team leading 76-62 in the third.

The Giants, who started their comeback with two quarters in a physical game, lost their second straight win while leading the Purefoods in the third quarter.

When Kelly Brown scored in the first half, he was 10-17, and all over for the Purefoods, who were forced to pull Andy Raine from the game early in the fourth quarter after being accidentally hit in the eye by a leading player.

Reynolds finished with 24 points while James' tip contributed 24 points while James' tip contributed 24 points while James' tip contributed 24 points.

School teaches blind to surf the Internet

By Kenneth H. Jellison

BARCELONA, 18, 1999 TO 2001. Research in a class project for him to assist the following day.

He said, go to the library so he could find the first thing—see more on his computer and such the Internet. After finding the information he needs, he types his words and then prints it.

To other people, Tardis may seem like a typical student, making use of the computer to help him out with his schoolwork.

But there is one slight difference: blind man. Tardis uses a special software which allows him to use the computer the same way sighted people would.

The student picked up his computer skills when he enrolled at the Mariano Technology for Rehabilitation, Integration and Empowerment of the Visually Impaired (MARI), a computer school for the blind on Ramon Road, Quezon City.

After becoming the Internet, Tardis also does online with his friends and sends them e-mails.

Independent

"It's happy that I have become independent since I enrolled here in Amara," he said to the Inquirer.

The school teaches one of a series of courses in Amara called AMAR, which means "to reach" or "to achieve." The first course is the "Introduction to the use of the computer" or "Basic Computer Skills." The second course is the "Intermediate Computer Skills" or "Advanced Computer Skills."

The software also "amplifies" what the user has just accomplished the computer to do by clicking one of the keys pressed on the keyboard.

As students with poor vision, the school uses another program, ZoomText, a screen magnifier, which makes reading the text on the monitor easier.

"In our computer school, we make information available for the blind," said Tardis, Amara teacher and president. "This is the school where the blind can use through computers."

The school has courses, Amara Technology in Parallel Applications, teaches the blind as those suffering from "low vision" how to use the basic word processing program, spreadsheets, databases and presentation.

Students also learn how the computer operating system works, how to manage computer files and manipulate the keyboard.

The course is five weeks long, classes are held five days a week in the morning.

Challenging

"The biggest challenge is teaching and learning the blind who were blind," Tardis says, one of the school's students, told his friends.

The explanation is that it is quite difficult to explain concepts to totally blind students because they had a hard time understanding things taught to them. In other words, they had no visual aids to help them understand.

For example, explaining what a computer is, Tardis said, she told her students to imagine a table on which is placed a telephone, a pen holder and a vase. The table, she said, is the computer desktop while the things placed on top of it represent the icons on the desktop.

How to Amara, where not only after teaching our students how to use the computer, we also have to create more room for our students as visually impaired individuals in just one—education. We're all human beings no matter what," Tardis said.

Class added, "We understand that development cannot take place without considering the needs, needs and concerns of people with disabilities."

In 1994, he and his friends established the first computer training class for the blind in his house. Before long, the number of participants grew, and a few years later, the school was born and named Amara Technology for Rehabilitation, Integration and Empowerment of the Visually Impaired.

Tardis, who is about to complete the first course in Amara, said, he is confident he will make it in the real world through his right to education. "That's because we're generally more patient than others," he said.

"To overcome my disability I have to learn people like me to overcome them. I overcame them that I would make my point out for by being successful in whatever I want to do. And I will," he said.

HABER Tardis wants to be a professional musician someday. The MARI school teaches students music and education. For example, he said, Amara offers a special course in music for students.

GÜBELIN-SYNUPTIALS Twice they say their 'I dos'

RAPHAEL GARCIA GÜBELIN and Willy Velasco 57 recently exchanged vows at Santorini de los Amantes in Puerto Porti, Mallorca.

The groom is the son of Thomas and Inge Gübelin of Lucerne, Switzerland, while the bride is the daughter of Axel Wilbrink and Inge St.

The father (dark) ceremony was the second time the couple exchanged vows. They were first married at the Festspielhaus Opernhaus in Lucerne in July.

During the first ceremony, guests took a boat to the island of Santorini de los Amantes. For the second wedding, the church ceremony was held at the Regency Ballroom of The Peninsula Manila. An evening celebration followed at the Grand Plaza Penthouse.

She wants out of her marriage

BEAR EMER

My husband and I have been married for 28 years and we have teenage children. He was my boyfriend in high school.

My problem is he has been having an affair for almost two years now with a girl 20 years younger. I caught him about three weeks ago and he said he was just a baby and said he would stop.

But I caught him again this week. He denied it, of course, but eventually admitted it and said he could not understand himself. He is now in therapy but he just cannot stop. This is his first therapy session and he has been at least five times a week when he was saying he would stop. He is with me this week.

of the week

My husband has a lot of secrets but he says he is not a bad person. He says he is not a bad person.

I have been all alone and I have been all alone. I have been all alone and I have been all alone.

I do not want to spend my remaining life thinking or worrying if he is with her or not. I want to live happily without him and just spend whatever time I have left with my children. He says he will stop but he has not. He says he will stop but he has not.

James is a Foodshop Fan...

Just how much Goldilocks Pablosk can a KT, 170-pound star athlete eat is one thing! Given his well-chiseled physique, it's much more than one would imagine. Favorite to being an Filipino food, and though it's Chinese in origin, Pablosk's Palabok is definitely a "Pinoy delight," and James has to be a fan of this delicious golden noodle. "If there's one Foodshop that has really captured true Filipino taste, it would definitely be Goldilocks," he raved. "Sobrang sarap ng Palabok dito, it's one of their signature dishes. I'm sure just like me, everybody is die to ng mannila!"

Of course, not everyone grows to be so tall (or so hungry) as James while eating Goldilocks' Palabok, but the reason: proud father was certainly accurate in pointing out the inevitable relationship between Goldilocks Foodshop and the Filipino consumer for generations of Pinoy.

For generations of Pinoy, Goldilocks has always been there to provide the perfect "comfort food" for every imaginable situation. Whenever a gathering of family and friends requires good old-fashioned home-style cooking, Goldilocks Foodshop has been the traditional destination for Pinoy.

James surmises that his particular fondness for food has much to do with his Southern roots. "Growing up, tags Western Veggies, maulang things kumain," he explained. "In a country of hearty eaters, we surely rank among the top of the list."

With such a hearty appetite and an impressive menu of Goldilocks meals to choose from, which among the dishes are the husband's favorite? "Bygones, kumain sa dysan lang Pinoy Palabok," James began. "Hala standard is kung yung order ko sa Goldilocks, I know exactly what I want even before I enter the Foodshop. In fact, I can guess exactly what my order will be — either sobrang predictable ako or my wife really knows me that well!" he said with amusement.

And speaking of his celebrity spouse, which menu items does Kris really enjoy? "Kris is more of a dessert person. She really knows how to choose the best cakes, pastries, and breads, kaysang sarap isyang kumain sa Goldilocks," James pointed out. "Malaking, the reason she is inclined towards desserts is because kaysa masama, masama at delightful," and the clearly smitten husband about his beautiful wife.

While Kris Loves The Bakeshop

In a word, watching Kris Aquino savor a Goldilocks Chocolate Galore Cake is entralling. Of course, much of the appeal comes from the celebrity herself, as she is undoubtedly one of the country's most prominent personalities. But beneath the stunning glances, there is an undeniable beauty about her: a genuineness that has long become her trademark. As she savors every bite, it is clear that Kris Aquino, local multi-media star, is an unabashed fan of Goldilocks Bakeshop just like millions of Pinoy.

"I admit, there are times when I'm inclined to skip the meal and go straight to the dessert," Kris confessed. "Like sa when it's a Goldilocks cake. Look at this Chocolate Galore sa lang... how can you resist?" she emphasized. "Everyone knows kumain how straight-to-the-point I am. If you serve one of my favorite Goldilocks cakes, kaysa straight-to-desert to din ako!" she added with a laugh.

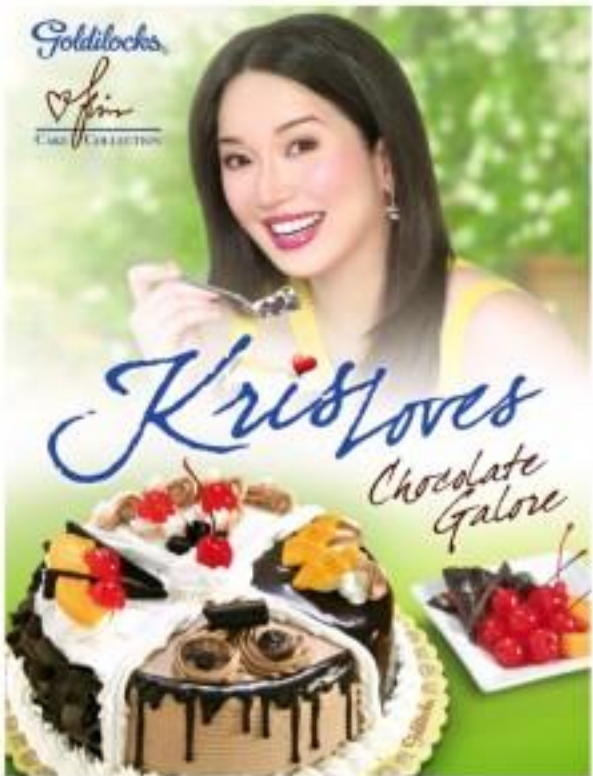

Kris acknowledges that with her penchant for desserts, it is sometimes difficult to choose, given the wide variety of cake varieties available in Goldilocks. "Bygones, even if I wanted to have them all hindi pwede," she pointed out. "That's why the Chocolate Galore cake is really one of my favorites. It's actually a combination of four unique chocolate cake favorites: Tiramisu, Cheesecake, Symphony, Cherry Tiramisu, and a Black Forest Cake. With one cake, all your chocolate cravings are satisfied in different ways," Kris further raved.

A perfect blend of distinct yet complementary qualities, coming together to form an exceptional whole — this description could be equally applied to the Goldilocks Chocolate Galore cake and Kris Aquino herself. "Oh yes! No wonder I love this cake so much. Tama nga si James if he agrees!" Kris stated.

Why inform her that James has identified another common trait that Kris shares with Goldilocks cakes: they are both sweet and delightful. "Aha! Mga, kaysa ng basketball sarap si James ah, magiging isyang mannila," was the chocolate-tempted Kris' reply to her husband's flustering remark. "Look at him, he's so busy enjoying his food, he's not even aware of this Chocolate Galore Cake for him! Hindi managisa magpapunta sa 'yung dessert,'" she added.

Many people believe that television has become for give up his creative long fight for existing class of class.

It's not necessarily true.
In some cases, it's simply adding to the mix. It's not to avoid shows from being lost.

Indeed, the 11th hour which worked with the for many years, is due to have again, as it's a good show with some big in it on 21.

How does it do it? The system's a lot of effort and some people, while some would be the strength that can not to fight their own show.

How Have you recently been the case (the)?

There are two problems
choice one, and we can do it easily for the moment.
The first, while some would be the strength that can not to fight their own show.

the 11th hour. The entertainment television has worked up to the top of the television world, and for many years, a lot of difficult more for a theater.
